The Georgia Institute of Technology College of Computing Alumni Association and the Georgia Institute of Technology Alumni Association sponsored an event to share their passion for technology and computing with the youth. On Saturday, July 18, 2009 children were introduced to the latest in computing technology at an event held just for them entitled "Transforming the Next Generation" in the Klaus Building on campus.

This family event featured a Wii computing competition, robotic exhibit, 3-D visuals, and crafts for the younger children. The whole family enjoyed live performances such as a step show from The Georgia Tech chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Inc. and the musical styling of the Georgia Tech Marching band.

The event was free of charge. Attendees were asked to donate a new school supply to those in need.

Math 1 On 1, LLC, one of the many sponsoring companies, held a book signing featuring its first published work "How to Help Parents and Kids Get Over the Fear of Math" written by Georgia Tech College of Computing alumna Sandra Carter (M.S. Computer Science, 2001).
